Two Choruses On Season Schedule

BEETHOVEN'S MAGNIFICENT Ninth Symphony will be presented by the orchestra during the current season in combination with the Dayton Chorus of 100 voices, founded and conducted by William H. Rapp. Soloists for this great work still are to be announced. Early reports of rehearsals disclose that Mr. Rapp has assembled a chorus of high quality compatible with the great musical work to be performed.

Once more the Inland Children's Chorus, sponsored by the Inland Division of General Motors Corporation, and looked upon as one of the outstanding children's choruses of the country, will participate in the Christmas program. This chorus of 100 voices, ages eight to sixteen, is trained by Richard Westbrock. Symphony patrons look forward to this concert as part and parcel of the Yuletide season not only for the traditional Christmas carols, but for the brilliant holiday spectacle it is with its special costuming and elaborate stage decorations.
