

Photographs (14) of David Lloyd during the world premiere stage production of Benjamin Britten's Saint Nicolas on October 20-21, 1953. Lloyd, a member of the New York City Opera, was arguably the leading tenor in the U.S. at the time.

Courtesy of Mary (Westbrock) Lubinski

Photos — 8x10"

David George Lloyd (1912–1969) was one of the first solo singers to seek a broader audience beyond his native Wales in the concert halls and recording studios of England, mainland Europe, and North America. The Nicolas program states that Lloyd “is one of the busiest tenors on the concert stage today.”

