

night with Verdi's "Il Trovatore," with Rose Bampton, Maru Castagna, Harold Lindi and Carlo Morelli in the cast. This will be repeated Thursday night.

"Madame Butterfly" will be sung Tuesday and Friday nights, James Melton and Rose Tentoni in the lead roles, and "Faust" will be presented Wednesday and Saturday nights with Muriel Dickson (her only appearance) as Marguerite.

An orchestra of 50 musicians from the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra will be conducted by Fausto Cleva, of the Metropolitan, and the ballet will be under direction of Blake Scott.

Because of economic necessities, the public spring concert of the Inland Children's chorus will be abandoned this year, W. S. Whitaker, general manager, advised.

The children, however, have been continuing their regular rehearsals under Richard Westbrook and a group of those interested has been asked to hear the children sing some of their new songs at 4 p. m. next Tuesday in the Dayton Industries building.

The concert program with a review from The Inlander identify the first spring concert as May 13, 1943 as part of that year's "Spring Festival."
