Dayton Music to Be Heard Far, Wide During Holiday

Dayton music will be heard far and wide during the Christmas season, as well as in a considerable number of local spots, due to arrangements made through various agencies in furthering the cultural interests of the city.

The music committee of the chamber of commerce, Herbert H. Nonneman, chairman, has prepared a program extending through Wednesday night; the Inland Children's chorus will go on a nation-wide broadcast Christmas eve and the first public concerts on the Deeds carillon will be played Christmas eve and day.

Another unusual event this year will be the Christmas eve broadcast of the Inland Children's chorus, which will offer a 30-minute program, beginning at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday, from the Dayton Art Institute. This will go out to more than 100 stations of the Columbia Broadcasting system network and can be heard here through WHIO. There will be no studio audience.

Songs to be included in the program are: "Glory Be to God in the Highest," "Ave Maria," "O Holy Night," "Gesu Bambino," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "The First Noel," "Silent Night," "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing," "Evening Prayer," from Hansel and Gretel, and "The Shepherd's Story."

In Sixth Year

The chorus, composed of children of Inland employes, is directed by Richard Westbrook and now is in its sixth year. The members range in age from 8 to 15 years and constitute a chorus that is an outgrowth of an idea extending as far back as 20 years.

When Inland started its series of employe Christmas parties at that time, entertainment was provided by children of various ages from Inland division families. The programs disclosed the fact many of the children possessed unusual vocal ability and the plan was conceived to form a regular Inland Children's chorus. Membership has grown to a total of 170 boys and girls, of which 100 are selected, on a competitive basis, for public appearances.

Behind the formation of the chorus was a desire to give the talented children of employes an opportunity to obtain an appreciation of good music and the musical education such an activity would make possible. Practice sessions are held several times weekly, but do not conflict with the youngster's normal home and school life.

Special costumes, designed by Raymond Sovey, leading New York designer, are provided. Sovey also was technical director in supervising the settings and lighting at each concert given by the group.
